

Abstract

Economic efficiency of livestock farms is directly influenced by many factors among which their dimension. Ensuring economic efficiency of farms is a major objective in developing strategies in agriculture, in which livestock is an essential factor.

From these aspects the authors have proposed to highlight the role of livestock in strengthening and improving agricultural units, based on a case study conducted at Agricultural Society „AGROIND” Berezeni, Vaslui County.

Key words: economic efficiency, strategies, livestock units