

Some aspects regarding the protected spaces in the culture of vegetables in Iasi county

Roxana-Dana RAILEANU - USAMV Iasi

The distributed production of vegetables and the rhythmic supply of the market with fresh products has become a stringent problem, the fact that by means of forced cultures fresh vegetable productions are obtained also outside the season, and very large surface productions too, their efficient use bringing great profits for the surface unit being know. Also, the vegetable culture in protected spaces ensures a permanent use of manpower, this being a sector without technological pauses during the year. The present paper (fragment of Ph.D thesis) targets the presentation of the current situation of the protected spaces in the culture of vegetables in Iasi county.
