

The analysis of some economic efficiency indicators of the livestock constructions in the Iași district

Roxana-Dana RĂILEANU - USAMV Iasi

An essential condition for the development and the increase of the economic efficiency of agriculture is the improvement of the usage of the fix assets (including the constructions) which play a major part within the framework of the production funds for their value, as well as for their active role in the process of production.