

Physiological research concerning apples trees varieties under chemical treatments, from S.C.P.P. Miroslava Meadow Iași

Ligia ACATRINEI - Biological Research Institute

& Researches over some apple trees varieties have shown that physiological parameters are influenced by tree variety, health condition, temperature, leaves exposition, etc. Un interesting aspect was the variation study of transpiration intensity and dry matter in healthy plants comparatively with diseased plants in different varieties of apple trees