

The implications of the local budget in the process of rural development in Romania

Elena RUSU (CHELARU) "Al. I. Cuza" University, Iasi

The paper analyzes the strengthening of Romanian rural development in the context of local financial autonomy and Romania as an European Union country; found that the administrative ability exercised at local level is still inadequate to the needs of increasingly diverse local communities, being limited by the lack of experience needed in developing strategies, creating a net gap between Romania and other EU Member States.
